TWIGS FROM THE FAMILY TREE

Written by M. Viola Schumaker, daughter of Joseph Ringer Schumaker and Minerva McKee.

THOMAS MCKEE -- Your Great Grandfather. Born in Ballynahinch, County Down, Ireland. County Down belongs to the Protestant Essex District and accounts for the fact that you have no Catholic ancestors.

Thomas McKee came to America when he was five years old, landing at Philadelphia in 1823. His parents piled their bundles and boxes on the beach and perched young Thomas on top of them with strict orders to stay there while they went to attend to the routine of ship discharge. He obeyed till he spied a coin lying on the beach, when he climbed down, picked it up, then clambered back up on the pile. When his parents returned Thomas had acquired his first American coin.

The McKee family remained in the neighborhood of Philadelphia. When Thomas reached young manhood he sold all his possessions and bought a horse and saddle and started west. He reached Pittsburgh, then little more than a trading post. He stopped at a log cabin on a small clearing and asked if he might stay over night. The owner of the cabin had the go-west-fever too, and offered to trade his house and land for the horse and saddle, but Thomas rode on. He must not have gone much farther because he married Jane Huggins and they lived in Pittsburgh. They got tired of city life and bought and moved out to the Cherry Run farm. There Grandpa McKee spent the rest of his life. He must have died about 1900. Grandma McKee made her home with your Grandfather and Grandmother Schumaker on their little Crooked Creek farm until her death about the first of September, 1910. I was starting for Provo, Utah to begin my teaching there, had my Pullman reservation and had to leave the day before the funeral.

Your Grandmother Schumaker was Maria Elizabeth McKee, the oldest of the eleven McKee children.

THE SCHUMAKER BRANCH -- Our Schumaker ancestor came to America from Westphalia, a German province on the Rhine, in 1770. There were a father, mother and eight children, the oldest about twelve, on that slow-moving ship. The father died on ship board and was buried at sea. The mother and eight children landed in the Virginia Colony and cleared land for a farm.

The oldest boy was John. When the Revolutionary War broke out he wanted to join Washington's army, but was only sixteen, a little too young. So he fibbed about his age, saying he was seventeen. They took him, but instead of giving him a gun, they made a drummer boy of him. Armies marched to music in those days and even in the Civil War.

The second boy, George, was our ancestral line. *I think it was George's son Daniel that migrated up the Potomac and settled in Western Pennsylvania not many miles from Crooked Creek, where he later bought the farm where Uncle John Schumaker lived. I don't know anything about his wife, who would be your Great Grandmother. Of course they were farmers. Grandma died and later Grandpa married Martha Lemon, who was an aunt of Aunt Mattie. You remember her. When Grandpa died he left the farm and all he had to his son John. Uncle John and Aunt Mattie lived with Grandpa in the brick house till he died. They took care of him and I suppose that was why he willed everything to him. I can remember Grandpa Schumaker quite well in his older days. He had black hair and side whiskers and beard, which was the style at that time. He spent most of his last couple of years sitting in a big homemade hickory chair with woven seat and back. He is buried in the little cemetery on the hill above the road. Uncle John's little daughter Bell is buried there, also

* Editor's note: It was George who migrated up the Potomac because Daniel's Bible lists his place of birth as Plum Creek Township, Armstrong Co., Pa.

Uncle John, Dan and my father. It seems too bad to lay them away in a long deserted country cemetery, but they want to keep the Schumakers together.

My earliest memory of your Grandpa and Grandma Schumaker (to me Uncle Isaiah and Aunt Rie) was when they lived at Latrobe in Westmoreland County, southeast of Pittsburgh. It was there I went to live with them when not quite four years old. They wanted a girl in the family so they begged for me. Mother let me go on their promise that if I wanted to go back they would bring me. That was a slow, tiresome trip, twenty-six miles in a buggy, and we were all tired. I remember nothing of it, but Aunt Rie told me years later that that evening I cried to go to mama. Uncle Isaiah got me up on his knee and I went to sleep. They had their minds made up that they would have to take me home the next day. At breakfast Aunt Rie asked me if I wanted to go home and I said "No". They said I never mentioned home again.

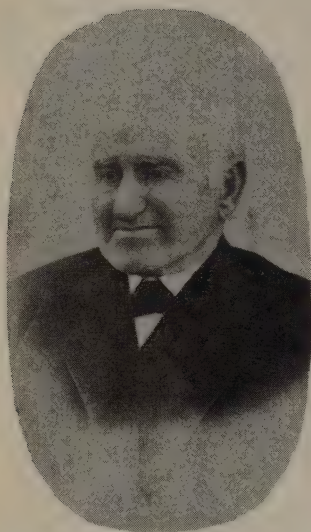

At Latrobe they lived on a farm with Aunt Rie's Uncle Joe McKee. He was old and cross and hard to get along with. I can remember him sitting on the big porch on a large wooden settee with his cane beside him and Rover the big Shepherd dog lying beside him. One day I was talking to Uncle Joe and dancing around him when I accidentally stepped on Rover's foot. With a growl he grabbed my heel and took a good-sized bite out of it. Uncle Joe said "Good for you, you never can keep still".

Your father was in his teens then. Once he had a big boil in the palm of his right hand that throbbled so that he walked the floor with it. He kept fresh cow manure poultice on it night and day to draw it to a head. That was the recognized cure for boils in those days.

We didn't stay long with Uncle Joe McKee. Life wasn't too pleasant there, and besides your Grandpa and Grandma had contracted the "go-west" fever. In the fall they moved to Rosston. Do you remember Rosston on the Allegheny River? All summer long before moving they had been drying fruit which they expected to take with them when they went west. The plan was to stay in Rosston till spring, then take a train for the west. I don't know just where in the west they intended stopping at. Grandpa Schumaker was still living in the brick house where Uncle John and family stayed with him,-- where Allie and Grace still live. As it happened, there was a piece of land, about fourteen acres, adjoining your Grandpa's boyhood home for sale, and instead of going west they bought that piece of land and built the house on it which you knew so well. They built the stable first and we spent one winter in it before the house was ready to move into. Uncle Isaiah preached Sundays while living at Latrobe, and when he moved to Rosston he began to preach on the other side of the Allegheny River. Ford City did not exist then so he either had to go to Kittanning on the train, then walk to the church, or cross the river in a skiff at Rosston and walk. After moving to his Crooked Creek home he continued to preach across the river. On Saturdays he walked the two miles to Rosston, took the train to Kittanning, then walked (I don't know how far) to his church, then came home on Monday. Those were hard trips and he always came home tired. When that got too hard he gave up the churches across the river and preached to the little Baptist congregation on that big hill across Crooked Creek, usually fording the creek on stepping stones and following a foot path up the hill. You probably remember those trips. The churches didn't pay big salaries in those days so most of the living came off the little farm. He could raise most of the food, and the chickens and eggs meant a little cash. There wasn't much money in those days. Eggs were worth about five cents a dozen.

In Grandpa Schumaker's family there were eleven children and all lived to grow up. Joshua died when he was a young man. Isaiah, Lebeus and Albert the youngest were all preachers. Albert was a missionary to the Indians in Oklahoma and he died of malarial fever while teaching in an Indian school. At the request of the faculty he was buried on the school campus.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE SHOEMAKER

George Shoemaker was married to the former Elizabeth Grimm. He was the son of Solomon and Elizabeth (Uncapher) Shoemaker.

FIRST GENERATION BORN IN AMERICA

SOLOMON SHOEMAKER was the son of George and Anna Mary Barbara Schumacher of the German community of Lovettsville, Loudoun County, Virginia. He was born in Loudoun County in either 1769 (according to tombstone dates at Spring Church, Pa.) or 1770 (according to Lovettsville, Va., records). In 1790 Solomon married Elizabeth Uncapher (also spelled Ungerfehr) who was likewise a native of the same community, being a daughter of Philip Ungerfehr. She was born in 1774. Solomon died 12-19-1854 and his wife died in 1846 at Spring Church.

In the fall of 1799 Solomon and several relatives were a part of a general exodus from Virginia to Westmoreland County, Pa. He and Elizabeth settled in Kiskiminetas Township, at what is now Spring Church, Armstrong County, Pa. Here on his 335 acres of land Solomon built their first home, a log cabin, in which he and his family lived until he completed a stone house, the first of its kind in the township. It was here that Elizabeth cooked over the great fireplace, never owning a cookstove. The masonry was done by Solomon, who was by trade a stone mason.

A descendant of the George Schumacher of Loudoun Co., Va., mentioned above, stated that the Schumacher family "was of Holland Dutch, Europe, origin, the family coming in the early years as colonists to Baltimore, Maryland, from which place the family branched, part of which went into Virginia."

According to another source, the founders of Lovettsville came into that valley "---- down from Pennsylvania - quiet, thrifty Germans driven from a war-ravished Rhine."

George Schumacher remained in Loudoun Co., Va., where he died in 1803 and his wife sometime prior to 1820. His will, on file in Leesburg, Virginia, lists his wife and children: John, Joseph, Solomon, George, Judith Warner, Sarah Warner, Elizabeth Potterfield, Daniel, and Christiana Miller. Only Daniel remained in Loudoun Co. Christiana moved to Ohio. According to George's descendant, five of George's children (John, Joseph, Solomon, George, and Judith) all settled in western Pennsylvania not too far from each other.

On this land he first built a hewed-log house and barn and later a brick home which was probably the best in the township.
